Touch-me-nots

Nature Playtime Series

“Maybe they are shy, just like you.”

Timid little Emma does not want to go to music class, until her grandmother, Popo, shows her the magic of touch-me-nots. With Popo’s gentle encouragement, Emma overcomes her shyness and finds her own song.

About the Nature Playtime Series

Emma and her grandmother, Popo, are best friends. Back in Popo’s day, children played with whatever they could find around them, such as seeds, flowers and leaves of plants. As Popo relives the old ways of play, new worlds are opened for Emma and love is passed on from generation to generation.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Sophia Huang is a copy editor by trade and a mother of two children. She began her career in journalism at the TODAY newspaper, where she worked as a sub-editor and at the foreign desk. This series is her first foray into writing for a young audience. Sophia believes that children should go outdoors as much as possible and learning is best done through play. She is passionate about upcycling trash into creative toys and art for children.
